About this opportunity

The Admiral Nelson is a stunning canal-side pub sitting on the Grand Union canal in Braunston, Daventry.

Come summer or winter this pub has something to offer. Fires are currently roaring with the nipper weather settling in and this pub feels homely, warm and ever so welcoming! With its many snugs and luxurious interior this pub offers both quality food and drink in a beautiful setting with stunning views across the fields and down the canal.

There are seats for 33 in the charming exposed brick restaurant with its quirky touches and atmospheric lighting to ensure your dining experience is one to remember.

The accommodation features three good sized double bedrooms, a private roof terrace area, a modern fitted kitchen diner and a well proportioned living room - the best thing though is the views out of the dual aspect rooms across the rolling fields and over the canal.

The community

Beautiful pub on the Grand Union Canal in the Northamptonshire area, surrounded by beautiful countryside and great walks.

Braunston is situated just off the A45 main road and lies between the towns of Rugby and Daventry.

In the village of Braunston you can find a selection of shops - excellent butchers, hairdressers and village stores incorporating the post office, a fish and chip shop, car servicing garage and a primary school.

All Saints' Church Braunston has overlooked the village and the villagers for over 10 centuries and the canals and the boat people for over 300 years.

Braunston Marina

Braunston Marina is steeped in history. It was originally developed at the turn of the 19th century as the waterways depot at the northern end of what was then called the Grand Junction Canal where it joined up with the Oxford Canal. Several original buildings from the Georgian and early Victorian periods are still in their intended use. The Marina's entrance is dominated by the very fine Horsley Iron Works cast iron bridge dating from 1834, erected by Thomas Telford. Read more here...
